

What is Lay Servant Ministries?

God calls us all -- laity and clergy alike -- to a life of servanthood as disciples of Jesus Christ. Lay Servant Ministries (formerly known as Lay Speaking Ministries) is a long-standing program of the United Methodist Church which helps lay women and men to recognize and use their spiritual gifts so that the missions and purpose of the church may be carried out. Regardless of Congregation size, the program equips and encourages the laity to serve in a variety of roles in partnership with their appointed pastors. Within the church, lay servants may provide assistance, leadership, and support in preaching, teaching, and specialized ministry programs. Outside the church, lay servants may minister to community members in need such as the poor, the sick, or the incarcerated. The Methodist Church was built on laity service. Currently 99.2% of the church is laity. In the earliest days of the Methodist movement, lay preachers were known as "exhorters" who provided pulpit supply for absent pastors. In 1956, the term "lay Speaker" replaced "exhorter." By 1992, the church recognized that laity did much more than public speaking, and expanded the role to include ministries of leading, caring and communicating. At the 2012 General Conference of the United Methodist Church, the name was changed from "Lay Speaking Ministries" to "Lay Servant Ministries."

Lay Servant Ministries

The church provides a clear path and educational resources for lay servants. Individuals can become Certified Lay Servants by completing the Basic Lay Servant Ministries course and one of 30 advanced courses. Similarly, those who complete advanced tracks of study can become Certified Lay Speakers or Certified Lay Ministers. The process of becoming certified begins with recommendation by pastor and church council or charge conference; Lay Speakers and Lay Ministers must also obtain higher levels of approval. The process of renewing certification includes submission of an annual report of relevant lay servant activities. Lay Speakers fall into one of three categories, along with Lay Servants and Lay Ministers. Described in the 2016 Book of Discipline. Lay Speakers serve primarily by preaching the Word when requested, thus fulfilling the traditional role of pulpit supply. Lay Servants assist in worship services in ways such as distributing the elements of Holy Communion. Lay Ministers provide particular service to a pastor as part of a ministry team, for example, by conducting public worship services, caring for the congregation, or developing new faith communities. All lay servants may serve the local church or charge and beyond by preaching, teaching, leading, or supporting specific ministry programs, and conducting meetings for prayer, study, and discussion.
